

Hi I'm Bob Lyons, Director of the Longwood Graduate Program here at the University of Delaware. I find myself standing in the University of Delaware Botanic Gardens, but this program, the website you've just clicked into, is a partnership between the University and Longwood Gardens. It's one that was started in 1967 with the primary purpose of granting a master's degree to those students who want to go into management and directorial positions in public gardens and public arboreta and other venues of public horticulture. We hope you enjoy navigating this site. If you have any questions by all means e-mail us. We're always happy for personal visits as well. Thanks again for coming in.
